Possibility of adopting and applying the concept of electronic banking - survey of a sample of commercial banks in the city of Dohuk

Abstract

Electronic banking is now currently the focus of attention by the departments in the financial and banking institutions for this service feature is the speed in the management of the service has distinguished this service adopted by the banks from other banks, which still depend other traditional service was therefore a modest contribution to this research to determine the extent the possibility of adoption and implementation of electronic banking in our banks, particularly in the Iraqi province of Dohuk and the extent to benefit from the use of technology in the performance of this service and search out the conclusions and specific recommendations.